“Randy Ellefson is a remarkable guitar virtuoso.” – Brave Words and Bloody Knuckles.

Randy Ellefson has released his fifth instrumental album, Now Weaponized! – a stylistic return to the hard rock of his first two albums; the third and fourth were acoustic guitar and classical guitar respectively. The songs feature his usual counterpoint and variations between the lead/rhythm guitars and bass, which provide an unusually rich soundscape that shows Ellefson’s training as a classical composer. He is the sole writer and performer of all guitars, bass and drums (this marks his debut as a drummer). He also engineered and produced.

Ellefson will release a music video for every song, one per month. Each will show all guitars, bass, and drums onscreen at once, allowing aspiring players to watch and learn the performances as actually played by the artist.

Ellefson holds a Bachelors of Music in classical guitar. The degree caused such severe tendonitis that he lost his guitar playing for years before recovering and embarking on his recording career, which has earned him endorsements with Alvarez Guitars, Peavey, and Morley Pedals.

He’s been on XM Radio Unsigned 52 and stations in Canada, Australia, and the U.S. Ellefson performed in the local All-Star Jam and has published articles at guitar related sites. He is very active on Twitter and the blogosphere.
